Art Unit: 1752

1. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn. The rejections of the final office action are also withdrawn since EP'574 adds Zr in amounts far greater than the impurity amounts set forth in the instant claims. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 3, 5, 7, 8, 10-12 and 14-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Uesugi et al. Uesugi et al. (col.2, lines 30-57 ; ex.2) discloses printing plates with Al supports containing Fe at .2-.4%, Cu at up to .03% and Si at .05-.2% with Zr and Mg at impurity amounts. Example 2 has Cu at .03%. It would at least be obvious to one skilled in the art to use Al supports with Cu at the upper end of the disclosed range and to modify the support of example 2 from the maximum disclosed Si content of .2% to a % in the middle or lower parts of the disclosed range for Si, i.e. use .05-.15% out of .05-.2%.

3. Claims 1, 3, 5, 7, 8, 10-12 and 14-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Sawada et al. '710. Sawada et al. (paragraphs 35-38 ; ex. 8) discloses printing plates with Al plates with .2-.5% Fe, .01-.04% Cu and .04-.2% Si with impurity amounts for Mg and Zr. Example 8 has Cu at .03%, Si at .08% and Fe at .28%. It would at least be obvious to one skilled in the art to use Cu at the upper end of the disclosed range in Sawada et al.

4. Claims 17, 19 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hotta et al. in combination with Sawada et al.'710 and Uesugi et al. Hotta et al. (paragraphs 9; 97) disclose printing plates with Al supports developed with solutions containing saccharides. It would be obvious to one skilled in the art to use the developing solutions of Hotta et al. to develop the plates in Uesugi et al. or Sawada et al. or to use the Al supports of Sawada et al. or Uesugi et al. as the generically called for Al supports of the plates in Hotta et al.
